

COURT: And you forgot at the hearing about your inquiry?

MR. SPENCER: Your honor, it is my mistake.

COURT: Well, please proceed with your inquiry now that you have remembered.

MR. SPENCER: Yes, sorry once again. Uh- I wanted to know if this trial is still being brought together under Rule 13, Part 4 of Title 18.

COURT: The court has ordered the binding despite the separate indictments.

MR. SPENCER: Thank you your honor.

COURT: Is that all? Counselor, you will not forget anything any further. Now. Jury selection. According to my clerk, the summons was sent out yesterday afternoon. Under the regular times, I have set out a schedule for proceedings. Those who got it have until next Tuesday morning to respond, be it by mail, phone, or appearance. Those who respond will receive a letter sent out that afternoon for appearance for jury selection. I have set, with other trial proceedings in mind, jury selection to start March 15, which is a Thursday. I am possibly to delay it, and if so, my clerk will phone you all. Until that date. You
